Esperamos que estén disfrutando de sus vacaciones. En caso de que no les haya llegado el comunicado que se envió sobre el próximo congreso de la AILCFH, el que celebraremos en La Habana, Cuba en noviembre de este mismo año, incluimos más abajo información pertinente al tema. Para más información, comuníquense con Bárbara Riess <briess@allegheny.edu> o Lidia Santana <gigi@ill.cu>.

Saludos cordiales,

María

Travel to Cuba

This year's conference for AILCFH members to attend is being sponsored and organized by the UNESCO, the Cuban Center for Literature and Linguistics, and the Women's Studies Program at the University of Barcelona. The AILCFH applied for a license with the U.S. Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) but did not receive a reply, so we are not a formal sponsor of the Cuba conference.

The U.S. embargo "el bloqueo," is still in effect (since 1961!), restricting trade and travel. Below are some tips and resources for you to exercise your legal right, as a professional researcher of Hispanic women's literature and cultural production, to attend the conference in Havana.

General License for Travel to an Academic Conference

You will be travelling under a General License for Professional Travel to Cuba; this is a self-selecting, self-executing license, meaning there is no paper license.

Many of you work at universities that may already have a general travel license for Cuba; you can travel under this license. If not, you must carry an official letter from your institution stating that you are an academic whose professional agenda includes research on Hispanic women and attendance at this conference.

Remember, it is not legal to travel to Cuba as a U.S. citizen for purposes of tourism, and you need to prove you are not a tourist. Your travel service provider (TSP) will have you sign an affidavit (sample attached) to that effect in order to buy tickets to Havana.

The United States Office of Assets Control (OFAC) has a list of guidelines for travel to Cuba; you will be traveling under section IV "General license for travel to a professional meeting," section 31 C.F.R, section 515.564.

(http://www.treasury.gov/resourcecenter/sanctions/Programs/Documents/cuba\_tr\_app.pdf page 16). There you will also find steps to apply for a specific license if you wish; more than double the recommended application time has passed since our application was received, with no response.

Purchasing Tickets:

If you are travelling as a citizen of another country or choose to fly via a third country you can book and pay for your flights directly with the carrier.

For U.S. citizens, U. S. government regulations require you to use an approved Travel Service Provider (TSP) (list attached).

Each TSP offers chartered flights that fly on certain days. You will have to work within those dates. Each TSP requires you to sign an Affidavit (sample attached) attesting to the fact you are not travelling for purposes of tourism. This year's AIFLCH conference is organized and sponsored by three international institutions: the UNESCO, the Barcelona Women's Studies Center and the Cuban Institute of Literature and Linguistics (ILL); since these are not located in the U.S. the conference falls under the OFAC conditions.

You will also need a visa from the Cuban side of things. You can contact Lidia Santana (gigi@ill.cu) at the Cuban Institute of Literature and Linguistics (ILL) or purchase one through your Travel Service Provider ($75.00); in the latter case, the visa will be issued at the airport, in the former, Lidia will be waiting for you at the José Intl. Airport in Havana before you pass through immigration.

As charter flights, check-in follows different rules. Some start as much as 4 hours before the flight and close 1.5 hours before boarding. You may have to wait in 3 lines: one for document check, one for luggage check, and one to pay for luggage check-- for the bag and for any weight over 44 lbs (including carry-on). These procedures are in place for the many Cubans who live here and are returning with products for their families. It is generally a chaotic environment, but with a festive feel.

Currency:

Cuba currently uses two types of currency: El peso cubano (moneda nacional) or El peso cubano convertible (CUC). As a foreigner, you will be expected to pay for everything in CUC. Be aware that any currency exchange office will take 10% off the top of your total amount to change and will then give you the going rate. Currently, 1.14 USD = 1CUC. This currency is not accepted anywhere else on the planet, and is used as a way for the state to accumulate divisas to purchase goods on the world market. You can change a small amount at the airport, but you'll get a better rate at the hotel.

Hotels:

The Nacional is an old classic with a fabulous view; the Capri is just remodeled-- spic and span and quite mod; the Havana Libre is run-down fifties Caribbean with a breezy huge lobby. All hotels are centrally located. Conference activities will take place at the Hotel Nacional. Prices and contact information were sent under a previous cover.

2014 Air Schedules to Cuba

(All times and fares subject to change – fares valid up to 30 day stay only) as of 3/6/2014

In addition to those listed below, airports in New York, Atlanta, Baltimore, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans, and Orlando have also been approved for flights to and from Cuba. However, no flights are scheduled from these cities as of this date. We will include flight information as it becomes available.

Miami / Havana / Miami

IMPORTANT: INTERLINE AGREEMENT

In almost all cases, reserving the same charter carrier in both directions will mean the least expensive fare. For travel to/from Havana using combined charter companies, contact Marazul for up to date interline agreements.

*AIR FARES*

IMPORTANT: PLEASE NOTE

All travelers to Cuba are required to have medical insurance coverage during your stay.

For travelers on most of the charter flights from the U.S., the cost for this coverage is included within the airfare charge.

For travelers on flights from Cancun or Nassau to Havana or from other cities, medical insurance will be available upon landing in Havana at a cost of approximately 2 -3 CUC (Convertible Cuban Pesos) per day in Cuba.

In some cases, travelers on the flights from Cancun to Havana may be able to prepay their medical insurance to Marazul at a cost of $3 US Dollars per day in Cuba.

IMPORTANT: INTERLINE AGREEMENT

In all cases, reserving the same charter carrier in both directions will mean the least expensive fare. For travel to/from Havana using combined charter companies, contact Marazul for up to date interline agreements.
